OBJECTION TO TRUSTEE'S DETERMINATION OF CLAIM

The Morse Family Foundation, (the "Morse Family Foundation") by and through its attorneys, Lax & Neville, LLP, hereby objects to the Notice of Trustee's Determination of Claim dated September 29, 2009 ("Determination Letter"), attached as Exhibit A.

BACKGROUND

1. The Morse Family Foundation opened an account at Bernard L. Madoff Investment Securities, LLC (“Madoff”) with account number 1M0177. The Morse Family Foundation, is a “customer” of Madoff, as defined by the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970 (“SIPA”).

2. The Morse Family Foundation’s final Madoff statement, dated November 30, 2008, states securities owned valued at approximately $1,597,521.32 (“November 2008 Statement”).

3. On December 11, 2008, the above-captioned liquidation proceeding was commenced against Madoff, pursuant to SIPA. See Order, Securities and Exchange Commission v. Madoff, No. 08-10791 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 15, 2008) (ordering relief under SIPA and transferring proceeding to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York) [Docket. No. 4]. Irving H. Picard was appointed Trustee (“Trustee”), charged with overseeing and administering the liquidation of Madoff and processing customer claims pursuant to SIPA. Id.; 15 U.S.C. 78fff-1(a) (2009).

4. On December 23, 2008, the Court issued an Order directing the Trustee to disseminate and make available notice and claim forms to Madoff customers and advise Madoff customers of claim-filing deadlines. See Order [Docket. No. 12].

5. The December 23, 2008 Order further provided that, to the extent the Trustee disagrees with the amount set forth on a customer claim form, the Trustee “shall notify such claimant by mail of his determination that the claim is disallowed, in whole or in part, and the reason therefor” See Order at 6 [Docket. No. 12] (emphasis added).

6. On or about April 2, 2009, the Morse Family Foundation submitted a Customer Claim Form to SIPC, setting forth its claim in the amount of $1,597,521.32. See Morse Family Foundation's Customer Claim Form at Exhibit B ("Morse Family Foundation, Inc's Customer Claim").

7. On September 29, 2009 the Trustee sent the Morse Family Foundation a Determination Letter stating "your claim for a credit balance $1,597,521.32 and for securities is denied. No securities were ever purchased for your account." See Determination Letter at Exhibit A.

8. The Morse Family Foundation hereby objects to the Determination Letter for the reasons described below.

GROUND FOR OBJECTION

I. The Trustee's Determination of Claim Fails to Comply with the Court's December 23, 2008 Order

9. The Trustee's Determination Letter fails to comply with this Court's December 23, 2008 Order, which directs the Trustee to satisfy customer claims and deliver securities in accordance "with the Debtor's books and records." See December 23, 2008 Order at 5 [Docket. No. 12]. The Morse Family Foundation's November 2008 Statement shows a final balance of approximately $1,597,521.32. The November 2008 Statement is the best evidence of the amount owed to the customer based on the Debtor's books and records. Accordingly, the Morse Family Foundation's should be allowed in the full amount of $1,597,521.32.

II. The Trustee Does Not Set Forth a Legal Basis for Disallowing The Morse Family Foundation, 's Customer Claim in Full

10. The Trustee does not set forth a legal basis for disallowing the Morse Family Foundation's Customer Claim in full as filed. The Trustee's Determination Letter only states

“your claim for a credit balance $1,597,521.32 and for securities is denied. No securities were ever purchased for your account.” See Determination Letter at Exhibit A. The Trustee’s purported grounds for disallowance do not have any statutory or other legal basis. Furthermore, the Determination Letter:

(a) does not clearly provide “the reason” for such disallowance, as required by the Court’s December 23, 2008 Order. See Order [Docket. No. 12];

(b) is inadequate to rebut the prima facie validity of the Morse Family Foundation, ’s Customer Claim as provided in Section 502(a) of the Bankruptcy Code and Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f);

(c) violates general principles of applicable law requiring that an objection to a proof of claim set forth, at a minimum, the relevant facts and legal theories upon which the objection is based. See, e.g., Collier on Bankruptcy I-3007.01(3) (15th ed.) (“[A]n objection to a claim should . . . meet the [pleading] standards of an answer. It should make clear which facts are disputed; it should allege facts necessary to affirmative defenses; and it should describe the theoretical bases of those defenses.”); see also In re Enron Corp., No. 01-16034, 2003 Bankr. LEXIS 2261, at * (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Jan. 13, 2003) (same); and

(d) includes an exhibit which purportedly calculates the money deposited less subsequent withdrawals, but is inaccurate and/or completely unsubstantiated.

III. The Trustee’s Definition Of “Net Equity” Is Incorrect As A Matter Of Law As A Customer’s “Net Equity” Under SIPA Is The Value Of The Securities Reflected In The Customer’s November 30, 2008 Madoff Account Statement

11. Upon information and belief, the Trustee denied Morse Family Foundation’s customer claims for based on his calculation of deposits minus withdrawals, without regard to the value of the securities reflected in the Morse Family Foundation’s account statements. The

Trustee's "cash in/cash out" approach is incorrect for several reasons as explained below:

12. First, the Trustee's methodology contradicts the plain language of SIPA, which defines "net equity" as the value of the securities positions in the customer's account as of the SIPA filing date, minus any amount the customer owes the debtor. Specifically:

The term 'net equity' means the dollar amount of the account or accounts of a customer, to be determined by –

- (A) calculating the sum which would have been owed by the debtor to such customer if the debtor had liquidated, by sale or purchase on the filing date, all securities positions of such customer . . .; minus
- (B) any indebtedness of such customer to the debtor on the filing date . . .

15 U.S.C. § 7811(11) (2009).

13. Consistent with this definition of "net equity," the Morse Family Foundation filed a customer claim for approximately $1,597,521.32 which is the "sum which would have been owed" to it if the securities positions reflected in its November 2008 statement had been liquidated, minus any amounts owed to Madoff. Despite the unambiguous and express language of SIPA, the Trustee has taken the position that the Morse Family Foundation, 's "net equity" is the total amount of the deposits in its Madoff account minus the total amount withdrawn. The Trustee's proposed methodology is inconsistent with the language of SIPA and is unsupported by all relevant case law. In fact, the Trustee's approach incorporates nonexistent words and concepts into the statute.

14. Second, the Trustee's approach is also inconsistent with the legislative history of the statute. SIPA legislative history confirms Congress's intention that broker-dealer customers have valid "net equity" claims even when the securities reflected on their confirmations and account statements were never purchased. Both the Senate and House reports on the 1978 amendments clearly reflect that a customer's net equity claim is not dependent on whether the securities were actually purchased by the broker-dealer:

“Under present law, because securities belonging to customers may have been lost, improperly hypothecated, misappropriated, never purchased or even stolen, it is not always possible to provide to customers that which they expect to receive, that is, securities which they maintained in their brokerage account. . . . By seeking to make customer accounts whole and returning them to customers in the form they existed on the filing date, the amendments . . . would satisfy the customers’ legitimate expectations”

S. Rep. No. 95-763, at 2 (1978) (emphasis added).

“A customer generally expects to receive what he believes is in his account at the time the stockbroker ceases business. But because securities may have been lost, improperly hypothecated, misappropriated, never purchased, or even stolen, this is not always possible. Accordingly, [when this is not possible, customers] will receive cash based on the market value as of the filing date.”

H.R. Rep. No. 95-746, at 21 (1978) (emphasis added).

Based on the regular monthly statements and trade confirmations, the Morse Family Foundation at all times believed and expected that Madoff executed such transactions and that its account actually held such securities. The fact that the securities listed in the confirmations and account statements were never actually purchased is irrelevant in determining the Morse Family Foundation, ’s account net equity.

15. Third, the Trustee’s Determination Letter is contrary to SIPC’s own policies and practices, as reflected in New Times Securities Services, 371 F.3d 68 (E.D.N.Y. 2004). There, the New Times Trustee’s position on “net equity” was in full accord with SIPA, and thus directly contrary to the Trustee’s and SIPC’s position in this case. Specifically, with respect to any claims that were based on confirmations and account statements reflecting securities positions in “real” securities that could have been purchased (i.e. securities that actually existed on the public market and whose valuations were objectively and publicly verifiable by the customers), the New Times trustee allowed all such “net equity” claims to the full extent of the filing date valuations of those securities, even though none of the securities identified in those records had ever been purchased by the broker-dealer. Here, Morse Family Foundation is in precisely the same position as the “real” securities claimants in New Times and should be treated no differently. Accordingly, its’ claim should be recognized in full as filed.

16. SIPC President Stephen Harbeck explained in the New Times case, that if broker-dealer customers have been led to believe that “real, existing” securities had been purchased for their accounts, then those customers are entitled to get the full value of their securities positions as of the filing date, even if that value represents a substantial increase from the purported purchase price of the securities, and even if the securities in question had never been purchased:

Harbeck: [I]f you file within sixty days, you'll get the securities, without question. Whether -- if they triple in value, you'll get the securities. . . . Even if they're not there.

Court: Even if they're not there.

Harbeck: Correct.

Court: In other words, if the money was diverted, converted --

Harbeck: And the securities were never purchased.

Court: Okay.

Harbeck: And if those positions triple, we will gladly give the people their securities positions.

Transcript at 37-39, In re New Times Securities Services, No. 00-8178 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. July 28, 2000).

The Second Circuit further stated:

Meanwhile, investors who were misled . . . to believe that they were investing in mutual funds that in reality existed were treated much more favorably. Although they were not actually invested in those real funds -- because Goren never executed the transactions -- the information that these claimants received on their account statements mirrored what would have happened had the given transaction been executed. As a result, the Trustee deemed those customers' claims to be “securities claims” eligible to receive up to $500,000 in SIPC advances. The Trustee indicates that this disparate treatment was justified because he could purchase real, existing securities to satisfy such securities claims. Furthermore, the Trustee notes that, if they were checking on their mutual funds, the “securities claimants,” . . . could have confirmed the existence of those funds and tracked the funds’ performance against Goren’s account statements.

In re New Times Secs. Servs., 371 F.3d 68, 74 (2d Cir. 2004).

17. Two years later, a different Second Circuit panel considered related issues in the New Times liquidation and expressed the very same views regarding the importance under SIPA of meeting a customer’s legitimate expectations: “It is a customer’s legitimate expectations on the filing date . . . that determines the availability, nature, and extent of customer relief under SIPA.” In re New Times Sec. Servs., 463 F.3d 125, 128 (2d Cir. 2006) (“New Times II”). Of particular relevance is SIPC’s repeated statement that customers’ legitimate expectations control, even when no securities were ever purchased:

“[R]easonable and legitimate claimant expectations on the filing date are controlling even where inconsistent with transactional reality. Thus, for example, where a claimant orders a securities purchase and receives a written confirmation statement reflecting that purchase, the claimant generally has a reasonable expectation that he or she holds the securities identified in the confirmation and therefore generally is entitled to recover those securities (within the limits imposed by SIPA), even where the purchase never actually occurred and the debtor instead converted the cash deposited by the claimant to fund that purchase. . . . [T]his emphasis on reasonable and legitimate claimant expectations frequently yields much greater ‘customer’ protection than would be the case if transactional reality, not claimant expectations, were controlling, as this Court’s earlier opinion in this liquidation well illustrates.”

Br. of Appellant SIPC at 23-24 (citing New Times I) (emphasis added), New Times II, (No. 05-5527).

18. As the court in New Times II explained, it is only in the context of “fictitious” securities claims that the “cash in, cash out” valuation methodology makes sense:

“Because there were no such securities, and it was therefore impossible to reimburse customers with the actual securities or their market value on the filing date (the usual remedies when customers hold specific securities), the [New Times I Court] determined that the securities should be valued according to the amount of the initial investment. The court declined to base the recovery on the rosy account statements telling customers how well the imaginary securities were doing, because treating the fictitious paper profits as within the ambit of the customers’ ‘legitimate expectations’ would lead to the absurdity of ‘duped’ investors reaping windfalls as a result of fraudulent promises made on fake securities. . . . The court looked to the initial investment as the measure for reimbursement because the initial investment amount was the best proxy for the customers’ legitimate expectations.”

New Times II, 463 F.3d at 129-30 (citations omitted)(emphasis added).

19. The “cash in, cash out” valuation methodology employed in New Times I with respect to “fictitious” securities claimants has no place here, where the Morse Family Foundation, ’s confirmations and account statements reflected “real,” well-known and publicly verifiable securities. Because the prices and values ascribed to the “securities positions” on those records “mirrored what would have happened had the given transaction been executed,” Br. for New Times trustee and SIPC at 7 n.6, the liquidation filing date value of those “securities positions” is the “best proxy for the customers’ legitimate expectations.” New Times II, 463 F.3d at 130.

20. Fourth, the Trustee’s methodology for calculating “net equity” is an improper measure of loss. The Morse Family Foundation invested money in its Madoff account with the reasonable expectation that it would grow, and the balance on its November 30, 2008 account statement reflects the benefit of that bargain. Indeed, the Morse Family Foundation’s Madoff account statements indicate such growth. In Visconsi v. Lehman Brothers, 244 Fed. Appx. 708 (6th Cir. 2007), the Court in opining on a Ponzi scheme case rejected the very same “money in/money out” methodology being utilized by the Trustee. The Court stated, “. . . the out-of-pocket theory, which seeks to restore to Plaintiffs only the $21 million they originally invested less their subsequent withdrawals, is a wholly inadequate measure of damages.” Visconsi, 244 Fed. Appx. at 713. Like the investors in Visconsi, the Morse Family Foundation is entitled to the full amount reflected in its November 30, 2008 account statement, regardless of his previous deposits and withdrawals.

21. Fifth, the Trustee's position conflicts with federal statutes, including, but not limited, the Internal Revenue Code. For example:

(a) Rev. Proc. 2009-20, issued by the Internal Revenue Service on March 17, 2009, expressly recognizes the income earned by customers, on which they paid taxes annually. Yet, the Trustee has taken the position that the income earned by customers is not their money.

(b) Rev. Proc. 2009-20 provides for a five-year carry-back of the theft loss. Yet, the Trustee has indicated that he intends to "claw back" income withdrawn by customers over the last six years.

(c) Customers were required by law to take mandatory withdrawals from IRA accounts. Yet, the Trustee is deducting from SIPC insurance the mandatory withdrawals that customers took and paid taxes on.

22. Because of his refusal to comply with SIPA's mandate that he "promptly" satisfy customer claims based on their last statements (their "Statutory Balances"), 15 U.S.C. § 78fff-3(a) and 4(c), the Trustee has decided that he needs a vast team of forensic accountants to pour through decades of records to determine each customer's net investment before SIPC pays any amount to a customer. Clearly, this is inconsistent with the statutory scheme and the legislative intent.

23. The Morse Family Foundation's "securities positions" are readily ascertainable from its' November 30, 2008 statements. Moreover, the Morse Family Foundation did not have any "indebtedness" to Madoff. It did not owe Madoff any cash or securities since it did not borrow from Madoff on margin. See H.R. Rep. No. 95-746, at 4754 (1977) (describing customers owing cash or securities to the stockbroker as "margin customers"); see also Rich v. NYSE, 522 F.2d 153, 156 (2d Cir. 1975) (under the 1970 statutory regime, when there were shortages of securities to satisfy "net" equity claims, customers received cash for their securities “less, in the case of holders of margin accounts, amounts owed” to the broker); see also In re First Street Sec. Corp., 34 B.R. 492,497 (B.S.D. Fla. 1983) (offsetting indebtedness of customer to broker from claim amount where unauthorized stock purchased was partially funded by borrowing on margin). Because the Morse Family Foundation did not have any indebtedness to Madoff, there is no need to perform any calculations whatsoever to determine the amount of its net equity. The Morse Family Foundation’s net equity is simply the “securities positions” set forth on the last statement.

24. In the event that the Court should determine that claimed gains on deposited funds should not be allowed, then in the alternative, the Morse Family Foundation is entitled to recover interest on such deposited amounts. Such interest is required as a matter of state law, and the United States Supreme Court has determined that in bankruptcy cases, creditor claims, including the right to interest, are determined by state law. See Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. of Am. v. PG&E, 549 U.S. 443, 450-51 (2007) (“[W]e have long recognized that the ‘basic federal rule’ in bankruptcy is that state law governs the substance of claims, Congress having generally left the determination of property rights in the assets of a bankrupt’s estate to state law.”).

(a) Under New York law, which is applicable here, funds deposited with the Debtors under these circumstances are entitled to interest. See, e.g., N.Y.C.P.L.R. § 5004 (2009); see, e.g. N.Y.Gen. Oblig. § 5-501, et seq. (2009). Accordingly, Customer Claims should be recalculated by adding interest to all funds deposited by customers such as the Morse Family Foundation.

(b) Under New York law, which is applicable here, customers are entitled to any returns the Debtors earned on the deposited funds under principles of unjust enrichment. Accordingly, Customer Claims should be recalculated by adding the amounts earned by the Debtors the Morse Family Foundation’s deposits. See, e.g., Steinberg v. Sherman, No. 07-1001, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35786, at *14-15 (S.D.N.Y. May 2, 2008) (“Causes of action such as . . . conversion and unjust enrichment qualify for the recovery of prejudgment interest.”); see also Eighteen Holding Corp. v. Drizin, 701 N.Y.S.2d 427, 428 (1st Dep’t 2000) (awarding prejudgment interest on claims for unjust enrichment and conversion).

IV. Trustee’s Determination Amounts to an Improper Disallowance under the Bankruptcy Code

25. The Trustee’s action in reducing the amount shown on the Morse Family Foundation’s Customer Claim by any prior gains reflected on the November 2008 statement or prior Madoff statements is an attempt to avoid such gains without alleging any grounds for avoidance or proving that such gains are avoidable under the Bankruptcy Code’s avoidance provisions. As such, any such disallowance is improper and unjustified, and the Determination letter should be stricken. See Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7001(1); 7008 (2009).

RELIEF REQUESTED

26. For the reasons stated herein, the Morse Family Foundation’s Customer Claim should be allowed in its entirety in the amount of $1,597,521.32.

27. The Trustee’s determination amounts to an improper disallowance of a claim that has prima facie validity. See Bankruptcy Code § 502(a) (2009). The Trustee has offered no factual or legal basis for his Determination. The Trustee’s Determination Letter, and the objections contained therein, should be stricken, or alternatively, the Trustee should describe his position in detail including all relevant facts, legal theories, and authorities. Upon the filing of such a statement, this matter will be a contested proceeding under Rule 9014, and the Morse Family Foundation will file a response.

28. The Morse Family Foundation requests such other relief as may be just and equitable.

CONCLUSION

29. The Morse Family Foundation reserves the right to revise, supplement, or amend this Objection, and any failure to object on a particular ground or grounds shall not be construed as a waiver of its right to object on any additional grounds.

30. The Morse Family Foundation reserves all rights set forth under Rule 9014, including, without limitation, rights of discovery. See Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9014 (2009).

31. The Morse Family Foundation reserves all objections as to the competence, relevance, materiality, privilege, or admissibility of evidence in any subsequent proceeding or trial of this or any other action for any purpose whatsoever.

32. The Morse Family Foundation incorporates by reference all reservations of rights set forth in its Customer Claim.
